Education Development Trust

School Partnership Programme: Peer Review

Programme Description

Education Development Trust's Schools Partnership Programme \(SPP\) is a partnership-based approach to school improvement. Through the programme, clusters of schools build capacity and capability in effective school self-review, peer review and school-to-school support. Established in 2014, hundreds of schools across England have engaged with the programme with numbers continuing to grow, including within Plymouth and the surrounding areas.

Based on current research and continuously informed by practice, Peer review develops successful partnerships to:

- Strengthen capability and capacity in leadership
- Increase confidence in leaders at all levels
- Improve teacher's understanding and skills with improvement priorities
- Improve pupil attainment and specific school outcomes for learners

The sustainable system-led partnership aims to develop senior leaders in year one of the project, embed at all levels in year two of the project and sustain system leadership from year three of the project.

The Schools Partnership Programme isn't a project, it isn't an activity.

It is not episodic, something that's done and ticked off on an annual calendar.

It is fundamentally a 'way of being' for groups of schools that will change the way they work together, in a spirit of collective will.

It is a continual, sustainable process that strengthens the maturity of a partnership, changes ways of working to focus on impact and outcomes and strengthens the culture to enable shared accountability for improvement to flourish.

"You need to be open and honest and be prepared to focus on those areas that you genuinely want to move forward - not look to showcase the best bits about your school to your colleagues because of professional pride! There is a need to accept that we don't have all the answers and that peer review can provide a focus, allowing us to look at things through a new lens and together find possible ways forward." (Plymouth Headteacher)
